

Four Pillars Finance Newsletter

Issue #92 (17 November 2008)

After the recent dramatic moves in the various stock and commodity markets around the world, it is a good moment to update our recent predictions.

Here we repeat our FPF prediction chart for the Nasdaq in 2008:

(Predictive chart made with FPF 1.1 software, available at <http://www.fourpillars.net/finance/fpf.php>)

Nasdaq

In September we warned that any Nasdaq drop below the 2000 level would result in a very painful slide and bring the recession scenario firmly on the table.

The Nasdaq did break down and now trades in the 1500's .

With the Metal months now well behind us, a rebound move is becoming very likely, and I would look for the market to move back up towards the 2000 level, possibly meeting with the downtrendline by spring next year (see chart).

At that point we could get another leg lower, possibly going down to the 1100 or 750 downside target we explained in our recent long term prediction chart update.

But for the short term I expect a couple of up months now.

Here is our updated prediction chart for Nasdaq:

Gold

Gold stocks made a very sharp down move with the XAU falling as low as 65 (it was at 200 just a few months ago)
We look for this market to rebound as well.
Initial target is 120, if it breaks above 130 then we are likely headed back up to 200 and higher.

Here is the updated chart:

Euro - US Dollar

The Euro also dropped as expected, and fell significantly below our price targets.
We are now right in the expected Water months bottom period for Euro, so this is a great opportunity to buy Euro again.
Current upside target for Euro is near 1.45

Crude Oil

Oil also kept falling well below our bottom target.

Also here we are right in the middle of projected bottom period, so oil is a strong buy here.

USO is currently near $45, we look for rebound towards $70-$80 next year.
